A distinctive voice on modern guitar

Adam Tvrđý is a Czech guitarist and composer whose musical language brings together modern jazz, blues and rock. His playing is rooted in the jazz tradition while remaining driven by strong melodies, dynamic contrast, groove and spontaneous interaction. He leads the Adam Tvrđý Trio and Quartet and works across the Czech and international jazz scenes as a performer, recording musician and educator.

Tvrđý studied jazz guitar with Jaroslav Šindler at the Jaroslav Ježek Conservatory in Prague and classical guitar with Zdeněk Dvořák at MKP. His international work includes a live Abbey Road recording under Ennio Morricone, festival and teaching engagements in India, performances in Japan, Canada and Algeria, and collaborations with leading European and American jazz musicians. Since 2016 he has taught jazz and rock guitar at the Jaroslav Ježek Conservatory.
